HISTORIC BOOK TOWER

Book Tower, located at 1265 Washington Boulevard, was designed by architect Louis Kamper and built by the Book Brothers in 1926. It was the tallest building in Detroit until 1928 and has 14 floors in the main building and 38 floors in the tower. After being closed in 2009, it was purchased by Bedrock in 2015 and reopened Summer 2023 after extensive renovations.

A conservatory dining room with a high, vaulted ceiling featuring a dark metal truss structure and large glass panels. The room is filled with round tables covered in white tablecloths, each surrounded by dark wood chairs with cane backs. The tables are set with white plates, glassware, and centerpieces of yellow and white flowers. Several large, ornate chandeliers with multiple glowing glass shades hang from the ceiling. Large windows in the background offer a view of a cityscape. The floor is made of light-colored wood in a herringbone pattern.

The Conservatory

The Conservatory Ballroom, on the 13th floor of the Book Building, has 2800 square feet of bright and beautiful event space that can accommodate 225 seated or 300 for a strolling reception. Rich wood paneling, limestone floors, and warm plaster set the stage for an opulent event.

Two round tables with lamps are positioned on either side of the bar. In the foreground, two light-colored armchairs are placed on a wooden floor with a herringbone pattern. Sunlight streams in from the left, casting shadows on the floor. The text "Linden Room" is overlaid in the center of the image.
